An International Seminar On “Academic Writing”

Academic writing or scholarly writing is nonfiction writing produced as part of academic work. Writing that reports on university research, writing produced by university students, and writing in which scholars analyze culture or propose new theories are all sometimes described as academic writing. Though the tone, style, content, and organization of academic writing vary across genres and across publication methods, nearly all academic writing shares a relatively formal prose register and frequent reference to other academic work. The Department of Biological Sciences, University of Veterinary and Animal Sciences, Ravi Campus, Pattoki is going to organize an online international seminar entitled “Academic Writing”

Objectives: The sessions will help postgraduate/undergraduate students to;

- Understand the expectations for reading and writing assignments at post-graduate level
- Understand and apply general strategies to complete thesis writing
- Determine specific reading and writing strategies that work best for them individually

Course Duration: One day (November 06, 2020)
Mode: Online (Google Meet)
Participants: All postgraduate/undergraduate students
